
Contents

Introduction	xi
Annie BARTOLI, Martine BRASSEUR and Gilles ROUET
Part 1. Inclusion of Discriminated and Marginalized Populations in a Territory
Chapter 1. The Inclusion of People from Disadvantaged Territories: Two SMEs in Seine-Saint-Denis	3
Hacène LAÏCHOUR, Jean-François CHANLAT and Jean-Marie PERETTI
1.1. Corporate social responsibility (CSR) policies and diversity in SMEs.	4
1.1.1. Diversity and social responsibility	4
1.1.2. Diversity and territorial responsibility.	5
1.2. Barriers and drivers for the recruitment and integration of people from disadvantaged areas	6
1.2.1. Recruitment	8
1.2.2. Integration	9
1.3. Contextualizing the inclusion of people from disadvantaged territories	14
1.3.1. Supporting urban recruitment through SMEs	14
1.3.2. Difficulties of employee inclusion	15
1.4. Conclusion	17
1.5. References	17
Chapter 2. “Territories with Zero Long-Term Unemployment” through the Lens of Neo-Institutional Theory	21
Amina SAYDI and Martine BRASSEUR
2.1. Inclusive practice	22

2.1.1. Inclusion	22
2.1.2. The social enterprise	23
2.2. The perspective of neo-institutional theory	24
2.2.1. The institution as a product of actors	25
2.2.2. Actors initiating change	26
2.2.3. The contributions of neo-institutional theory to the question of the diffusion of inclusive practices	28
2.3. Case study: the territories with zero long-term unemployment experiment	30
2.3.1. A collective approach for another way to achieve entrepreneurship	30
2.3.2. An experiment in search of diffusion	32
2.3.3. A program in search of legitimacy	34
2.4. Conclusion	35
2.5. References	36
Chapter 3. The Inclusion of Lebanese Women with Breast Cancer: Between Stigma and Resilience	41
Nathalie CARIOU GHANTOUS, Jean-François CHANLAT and Laurence FROLOFF BROUCHE
3.1. From a social identity robbed by disease to stigmatization and resilience	42
3.2. The perspectives of 25 Lebanese women with breast cancer in the workplace	45
3.2.1. Beginning of the disease cycle and its representation in companies	45
3.2.2. Work cycle, illness cycle: concordances	47
3.2.3. Resilience and trajectories.	50
3.3. Conclusion	52
3.4. References	53
Chapter 4. Women Entrepreneurs from Deprived Areas as Generators of Inclusion: A Capabilities Interpretation.	57
Amélie NOTAIS and Julie TIXIER
4.1. Proposition of a framework for analyzing the inclusive territory	58
4.1.1. Inclusive territory: a fuzzy target.	58
4.1.2. Generating inclusion: from concept to action	59
4.2. A qualitative and sensitive approach to local women's entrepreneurship.	61
4.3. The capabilities of women entrepreneurs: a potential tool for inclusion	64
4.3.1. Environmental conversion factors	64

4.3.2. Social conversion factors	65
4.3.3. Individual conversion factors	67
4.4. The contribution of capabilities and the question of granularity	68
4.5. Conclusion	70
4.6. References	70

Part 2. The Stakeholders of Inclusive Entrepreneurial Ecosystems

Chapter 5. From Fighting Exclusion to Projects for Inclusion: The Evolution of Public and Private Policies

Annie BARTOLI and Gilles ROUET

5.1. A brief history of the fight against social exclusion in France	76
5.1.1. Exclusion as a sign of social maladjustment that can be overcome by employment and the economy	77
5.1.2. Citizen solidarity: combating the cultural dimension of social exclusion	77
5.1.3. Market exclusion: an indicator of long-term unemployment questioning social rights	79
5.1.4. Exclusion as a process of disaffiliation and vulnerability combated by social and family support	80
5.1.5. Exclusion as a marker of marginality or even of refusal of assistance	80
5.1.6. A case-by-case approach to combating social exclusion and individual disintegration	81
5.1.7. Social exclusion: an inevitable dysfunction of modern society	82
5.1.8. From the fight against exclusion to inclusion projects: beyond a simple mirroring of reasoning	84
5.2. European policies: from anti-exclusion to pro-inclusion incentives	85
5.2.1. Community policies to combat social exclusion	85
5.2.2. Towards an EU-wide approach to inclusion	86
5.3. Corporate dynamics and inclusive policies	88
5.3.1. Inclusion as a CSR variable	89
5.3.2. “Diversity and inclusion”: the new managerial policies of large multinational companies	90
5.4. Public policies for inclusion at the territorial level	96
5.4.1. The development of the “inclusive city”	97
5.4.2. Towards a societal role for local authorities	98
5.5. Conclusion	100
5.6. References	101

Chapter 6. Inclusive Governance in AOC Champagne	105
Mathilde CHOMLAFEL and Jean-Paul MÉREAUX
6.1. The Champagne sector as a practice area for the implementation of inclusive governance	107
6.1.1. A history of the relations between the actors of the champagne production chain	107
6.1.2. The Champagne region as a constructed space, bearing identities	109
6.1.3. Exclusion as a fertile ground for inclusion in the territory of AOC Champagne	111
6.1.4. Promoting inclusion to ensure the sustainability of the Champagne sector	113
6.2. A literature review of professional perspectives in the context of the Covid-19 pandemic	115
6.3. Inclusive governance in AOC Champagne	121
6.4. Conclusion	123
6.5. References	124
Chapter 7. Promoting Inclusive Partnership Dynamics within a Territory: The Case of Territories with Zero Long-Term Unemployment	127
Jean-Christophe SARROT
7.1. The impotence of public policies in the face of unemployment in France	128
7.2. Building a new common good: employment	129
7.3. A source as close as possible to the territories	130
7.4. Unprecedented unanimity in the French Parliament	131
7.5. Confidence in the unemployed (an excluded population).	132
7.6. The local employment committee: a new tool for shared governance	134
7.7. The role of the actors' representations	136
7.8. Compensation for territorial inequalities.	137
7.9. Changing attitudes.	137
7.10. An unprecedented articulation between the territory and the national dimension	138
7.11. Social work transformed by access to employment for all	140
7.12. Highlighting the different aspects of poverty	141
7.13. New indicators to move towards an "unknown desirable"	141
7.14. Conclusion	142
7.15. References.	143

Chapter 8. The Contribution of Quebec’s Community Credit Organizations to Social and Territorial Development	145
Marie LANGEVIN and Annie-Claude VEILLEUX
8.1. Community credit in Quebec	147
8.2. Community credit and inclusive dynamics in the territories: the Mauricie region.	151
8.2.1. The socio-economic profile of the Mauricie region.	151
8.2.2. Proximity support and the creation and maintenance of businesses and jobs.	154
8.2.3. Factors of social inclusion: atypical entrepreneurs	156
8.2.4. The entrepreneurial ecosystem: diversification and networking.	159
8.2.5. The community’s contribution to the community	162
8.3. Conclusion	163
8.4. References	164
Conclusion	167
Martine BRASSEUR
List of Authors	173
Index	175