

---

Contents

---

Acknowledgements . . . . .	vii
Introduction . . . . .	ix
Chapter 1. Towards Developmental Psychodynamics . . . . .	1
1.1. Spatio-temporal points of reference and development . . . . .	1
1.1.1. Sense of normativity . . . . .	1
1.1.2. The psychodynamic approach to work studies . . . . .	9
1.2. Reflective skills and ethical initiation . . . . .	17
1.2.1. Reflexivity and succession: towards a feminine philosophy . . . . .	18
1.2.2. Studying subjectivation. . . . .	21
1.3. A mission to achieve equality. . . . .	31
1.3.1. A mission in context . . . . .	32
1.3.2. Gendered socialization: state of play . . . . .	37
1.3.3. School survey . . . . .	41
1.3.4. Within the classroom: self-use and gender norms . . . . .	44
1.4. Professional standards and strategic thinking . . . . .	48
1.4.1. Socio-didactic professionalism and illusio . . . . .	48
1.4.2. Out-of-school mediation and empowerment: from girls to women. . . . .	54
1.4.3. Strategy: response to entropy . . . . .	59
Chapter 2. Governance and Transformation . . . . .	65
2.1 Governance at the university . . . . .	65
2.1.1. Values and the “must be” . . . . .	65
2.1.2. Investigate, diagnose . . . . .	69
2.1.3. Building in project mode, accountability and getting to know each other . . . . .	75
2.2. Supervision and care. . . . .	83
2.2.1. Childhood as a narrative . . . . .	83

2.2.2. Storytelling, reconstruction, the humanities of education . . . . .	85
2.2.3. What use is care? . . . . .	87
2.2.4. A material-immaterial treatment of the public thing . . . . .	89
2.2.5. Care of the feminine: gardening and foresight . . . . .	93
2.3. Performativity and autonomy . . . . .	96
2.3.1. The feminine, vocation and kairos . . . . .	96
2.3.2. On autonomy . . . . .	98
2.3.3. Programmatic translations . . . . .	100
2.4. Practicing and teaching human and social sciences at the university today. . .	109
2.4.1. Flux . . . . .	109
2.4.2. Innovate, renovate and revitalize . . . . .	112
2.4.3. Public action and enhancement . . . . .	120
Chapter 3. Women: Lines of Research in Development . . . . .	141
3.1. Analyzing the movement . . . . .	141
3.1.1. A vision of development . . . . .	141
3.1.2. Volition and poiesis . . . . .	148
3.1.3. Listening to voices . . . . .	160
3.1.4. Movement as thought. . . . .	162
3.2. Conflictualities and femininity . . . . .	167
3.2.1. Vitality and conflict. . . . .	167
3.2.2. Girls, women: a continuum . . . . .	168
3.2.3. Les Roses noires (Milano 2012) . . . . .	171
3.2.4. Situated cognition. . . . .	174
3.2.5. Pilgrimage on the side lines: Address conflict through art . . . . .	176
3.2.6. Illumination(s) followed by F(l)ammes . . . . .	178
3.3. Modernization and spirituality: reciprocal contributions? . . . . .	183
3.3.1. Mediterranean: crossroads of knowledge, cultural cradle . . . . .	183
3.3.2. Reform: interpretations and revitalizations . . . . .	190
3.4. Feminine scriptures . . . . .	198
3.4.1. Beneath the genre. . . . .	198
3.4.2. Resilience . . . . .	200
Conclusion . . . . .	213
References . . . . .	219
Index . . . . .	233