Introduction . . . . .	xiii
Part 1. Landscape: Continuity and Transformation . . . . .	1
Introduction to Part 1 . . . . .	3
Chapter 1. Landscape: The Resistance of the Past? . . . . .	5
1.1. The past in the present . . . . .	5
1.1.1. Architectural and morphological persistences . . . . .	5
1.1.2. Looking to the present to uncover the past: regressive history . . . . .	7
1.1.3. The palimpsest as accumulation . . . . .	9
1.2. Change, an eternal constant? . . . . .	12
1.2.1. The diachronic approach. . . . .	12
1.2.2. Connecting past and present . . . . .	12
1.2.3. Drivers of change . . . . .	15
1.2.4. Primary forms: a non-evolving landscape . . . . .	18
1.2.5. The notion of decay . . . . .	20
1.3. Reversible time. . . . .	22
1.3.1. Resistance to change . . . . .	22
1.3.2. The ancient plan as a work of art. . . . .	23

1.3.3. The ancient plan as a societal project . . . . .	24
1.3.4. Artificial versus natural forms . . . . .	25
1.3.5. Conclusion . . . . .	26
Chapter 2. Landscape: A Past... Surpassed? . . . . .	29
2.1. A visual revolution . . . . .	29
2.1.1. A new vision of landscape . . . . .	30
2.1.2. The allure of a new vision. . . . .	34
2.1.3. Are we moving toward erasure of the past? . . . . .	37
2.2. A stratified landscape . . . . .	38
2.2.1. Erasure in the palimpsest model . . . . .	38
2.2.2. The fossil landscape . . . . .	41
2.2.3. Buried landscapes. . . . .	43
2.2.4. The stratified landscape . . . . .	45
2.3. The synchronic view . . . . .	50
2.3.1. Synchronizing forms and society. . . . .	50
2.3.2. The negation of nature and the division of past from present . . . . .	52
2.3.3. The break between past and present in methodology . . . . .	53
2.3.4. The opposition of nature and culture . . . . .	54
2.4. Conclusion . . . . .	56
Chapter 3. Landscape: The Articulation of Past, Present and Future . . . . .	59
3.1. The 1990s: a period of revival. . . . .	59
3.1.1. Learning from the ground . . . . .	59
3.1.2. Re-evaluating the nature/culture dichotomy . . . . .	60
3.2. The inversion of time . . . . .	63
3.2.1. Non-linear temporalities. . . . .	63
3.2.2. Evolved forms versus decayed forms . . . . .	65
3.2.3. From regressive analysis to compiled maps . . . . .	66
3.3. Discovering new forms . . . . .	69
3.3.1. River corridors . . . . .	69
3.3.2. Formation networks . . . . .	71
3.4. Landscape as a self-organized system . . . . .	74
3.4.1. Self-organization and morphogenesis . . . . .	74
3.4.2. Plot layouts and road and path networks as systems . . . . .	75
3.5. Organizing principles in plot layout and road networks. . . . .	80
3.5.1. Morphological principles: reproduction of parcel layouts and road networks . . . . .	80

3.5.2. The role of morphogens . . . . .	83
3.5.3. Morphostasis, transformission and resilience . . . . .	88
3.5.4. The articulation of flow, ground footprint and shape . . . . .	90
3.5.5. Asynchrony in flows, ground footprints and shapes: the importance of lag . . . . .	95
3.6. Forms in a landscape: specific temporalities . . . . .	101
3.6.1. New temporalities in archeogeography . . . . .	102
3.6.2. Time as a spiral . . . . .	105
3.7. Conclusion . . . . .	107
Part 2. Resilience: A Tool for Understanding the Dialectics of Persistence and Change . . . . .	109
Introduction to Part 2 . . . . .	111
Chapter 4. Ecological Resilience as a Systemic Property of Social-ecological Systems . . . . .	115
4.1. The roots of resilience . . . . .	115
4.2. Resilience versus stability: the dynamic role of perturbations . . . . .	120
4.3. A dynamic approach to organization: the adaptive cycle . . . . .	121
4.4. The panarchy model. . . . .	124
4.4.1. Development of the model . . . . .	124
4.4.2. Panarchy and social systems . . . . .	129
4.5. Alternative attractors and transitions in complex systems . . . . .	132
4.5.1. Multiple states. . . . .	132
4.5.2. Alternative attractors and hysteresis . . . . .	133
4.6. Conclusion . . . . .	137
Chapter 5. Resilience and Spatial Systems . . . . .	139
5.1. Pre-2005: the first appropriations of resilience in archeology and geography . . . . .	140
5.1.1. Research in the English-speaking community . . . . .	140
5.1.2. The French case: simultaneous adoption in archeology and geography . . . . .	141
5.1.3. Geography: a limited adoption of the concept of resilience . . . . .	149
5.1.4. Archeology: an adoption of resilience mediated by archeogeography . . . . .	150

---

5.2. New developments and critical approaches after 2005 . . . . .	157
5.2.1. Adoption of the notion of resilience by public authorities and inflation of the term. . . . .	157
5.2.2. The adoption of resilience in the geography of risks . . . . .	161
5.2.3. A controversial appropriation of the notion of resilience. . . . .	164
5.2.4. Assimilation with stability: engineering resilience . . . . .	166
5.2.5. Resilience as a systemic property: a limited impact. . . . .	168
5.3. Conclusion . . . . .	172
Chapter 6. The Conceptual Framework of Ecological Resilience: A Long-term Approach . . . . .	173
6.1. The conceptual framework of ecological resilience: points for discussion . . . . .	173
6.2. The benefits of the long-term perspective . . . . .	178
6.3. The cultural landscape: a field of heuristic experimentation . . . . .	182
6.3.1. The contribution of cultural landscapes and land-use legacies . . . . .	182
6.3.2. The role of spatial markers in social resilience . . . . .	185
6.4. Transitions in settlement systems . . . . .	188
6.5. Conclusion . . . . .	191
Part 3. Synthesis: Landscape as a Resilient Social-ecological System . . . . .	195
Introduction to Part 3 . . . . .	197
Chapter 7. Landscape: An Integrated System of Societies and Environments . . . . .	201
Chapter 8. Landscape as a Complex Adaptive System . . . . .	205
8.1. Landscape emergence as a system: key concepts. . . . .	205
8.2. Maintenance and reproduction of landscapes as systems: key concepts . . . . .	207
8.3. Temporalities of resilience in a landscape: key concepts . . . . .	210
8.4. Transitions in landscapes: key concepts . . . . .	216
8.5. Reorganization in a landscape: key concepts . . . . .	218

8.6. The articulation between persistence and change in a landscape: key concepts . . . . .	219
8.7. Temporalities of reorganization in landscape: key concepts . . . . .	223
8.8. Conclusion: summary and directions for further investigation. . . . .	224
Conclusion . . . . .	229
