Introduction . . . . .	xi
Sylvie LELEU-MERVIEL, Daniel SCHMITT and Philippe USEILLE
Part 1. Epistemology and Concepts . . . . .	1
Chapter 1. From UXD (User eXperience Design) to LivXD (Living eXperience Design): Towards the Concept of Experiences of Life and their Design . . . . .	3
Patrizia LAUDATI and Sylvie LELEU-MERVIEL
1.1. Introduction . . . . .	3
1.2. The source of UXD . . . . .	4
1.2.1. From design to user-centered design (UCD) . . . . .	4
1.2.2. What is UXD? . . . . .	5
1.2.3. The UXD approach in practice . . . . .	7
1.2.4. Assessment . . . . .	9
1.3. Beyond digital devices: from experience design to life experience design . . . . .	10
1.3.1. The framework of the experience: spaces and living spaces . . . . .	10
1.3.2. The practices of the places: living experience and visit experience . . . . .	11
1.4. Views on experience. . . . .	12
1.4.1. Experience according to Dewey . . . . .	13
1.4.2. The conditions of experience according to Dewey. . . . .	14
1.4.3. The meaning of experience according to Dewey. . . . .	16
1.4.4. When Dewey anticipates Varéla. . . . .	17
1.4.5. Theureau's course of experience applied to the case of the visit experience . . . . .	18
1.4.6. Françoise Héritier's identity perspective . . . . .	19

1.5. How can we design experience? . . . . .	20
1.5.1. Is it possible to design experience? . . . . .	20
1.5.2. How can we design the spatial framework of experience? . . . . .	21
1.5.3. Criteria for the spatial preconfiguration of life experience: LivXD. . . . .	21
1.6. Conclusion and perspectives . . . . .	23
1.7. References . . . . .	24
1.8. Webography . . . . .	26
Chapter 2. Thinking and Living “Experience”: Pragmatist Contributions from John Dewey . . . . .	27
Françoise BERNARD
2.1. Introduction . . . . .	27
2.2. Reading experiences: paths to experience in John Dewey’s work. . . . .	28
2.3. John Dewey: a broad, constructed and argued pragmatism . . . . .	31
2.4. A social philosophy open to multiple themes and practices . . . . .	33
2.5. Conclusion . . . . .	36
2.6. References . . . . .	37
2.7 Webography . . . . .	40
Chapter 3. Paths Created by an Enactive-relativized Approach to Experience: the Case of Viewing Experience . . . . .	41
Charles-Alexandre DELESTAGE
3.1. Introduction . . . . .	41
3.2. Method of relativized conceptualization and enaction . . . . .	42
3.2.1. On the subject of embodied cognition. . . . .	42
3.2.2. Method of relativized conceptualization . . . . .	45
3.2.3. Enaction . . . . .	51
3.2.4. First theoretical contributions . . . . .	53
3.3. From percept to concept. . . . .	55
3.3.1. The body, a unit of consciousness. . . . .	56
3.3.2. Communication perspective . . . . .	63
3.3.3. Communicability of the lived experience. . . . .	70
3.4. The horizon of relevance . . . . .	72
3.4.1. Specific individual expectations and relevance: the case of viewing experience . . . . .	73
3.4.2. Towards a horizon of relevance . . . . .	77
3.5. Conclusion . . . . .	81
3.6. Appendix: MRC summary . . . . .	82
3.7. References . . . . .	91

Chapter 4. The Lived Experience as an Alternative to Digital Uses . . . . .	93
Philippe BONFILS, Laurent COLLET and Michel DURAMPART
4.1. Introduction . . . . .	93
4.2. A partial review of a scientific production linked to the questions of experience. . . . .	94
4.2.1. Two references: enactivism and narrative semiotics . . . . .	94
4.2.2. The prism of the relationship with the device . . . . .	95
4.2.3. Shifting gaze, from interaction to the subject's transformations . . . . .	96
4.2.4. The literacy current . . . . .	96
4.3. The lived experience in i3M Toulon research programs (IMSIC) questioning digital technology at school . . . . .	97
4.3.1. Prerequisites: a context of paradoxical injunctions . . . . .	98
4.3.2. An example of "diligence" . . . . .	98
4.3.3. The bottom line: rigidities, immobilization and fears . . . . .	101
4.4. The lived experience in i3M Toulon research programs (IMSIC) questioning immersive environments and industry training. . . . .	102
4.4.1. The observation of a shift from uses to experiences to be lived . . . . .	102
4.4.2. From experience stories to testing . . . . .	104
4.5. Assessment: the lived experience and its methodological consequences in research. . . . .	106
4.6. Conclusion . . . . .	107
4.7. References . . . . .	108
 Part 2. Experiences of Creation and/or Work . . . . .	 111
 Chapter 5. Sources of Video Mapping: a "Proto-narrativity" of a Musical Nature? . . . . .	 113
Pascal BOUCHEZ and Philippe USEILLE
5.1 Introduction . . . . .	113
5.2. Video mapping and narrativity: a musical chord? . . . . .	114
5.3 Parent-child interactions and proto-narrativity. . . . .	118
5.4. Proto-narrativity and configuration of the temporal experience . . . . .	120
5.5. Conclusion . . . . .	123
5.6. References . . . . .	125
 Chapter 6. In the Minds of Artists? Study of the Situated Artistic Creation Experience . . . . .	 127
Marine THÉBAULT and Daniel SCHMITT
6.1. Creation: between myth and mystery . . . . .	127
6.2. Video mapping: a form of support for the study of creative experiences . . . . .	128

6.3. REMIND: a method for analyzing the artistic creation experience . . . . .	129
6.3.1. Summary of artists' different courses of experience . . . . .	132
6.3.2. Discussion . . . . .	138
6.4. Conclusion . . . . .	139
6.5. Acknowledgments . . . . .	139
6.6. References . . . . .	139
Chapter 7. Participants' Experience in an Optical Illusion Installation . . . . .	143
Khaldoun ZREIK and Ahmad ALI
7.1. Preamble . . . . .	143
7.2. Visual perception and the art of optical illusion. . . . .	144
7.2.1. Visual perception in an optical illusion . . . . .	144
7.2.2. Geometrical-optical illusion . . . . .	146
7.3. Receiving visual data . . . . .	152
7.3.1. The spectator's culture . . . . .	153
7.3.2. The spectator's age . . . . .	154
7.3.3. The spectator's gender . . . . .	154
7.4. Mediation in the search for perspective . . . . .	155
7.4.1. Anamorphosis . . . . .	155
7.4.2. Digital anamorphosis . . . . .	158
7.4.3. Lenticular printing . . . . .	159
7.5. The art of optical illusion . . . . .	161
7.5.1. Op Art: main features. . . . .	163
7.5.2. The art of optical illusion from a unique viewpoint . . . . .	165
7.5.3. The interactive optical illusion. . . . .	171
7.6. Design examples. . . . .	175
7.6.1. Unique perspective in the media. . . . .	176
7.6.2. Experiment at Le Chêne . . . . .	177
7.6.3. Spectator reactions to the installation . . . . .	179

Part 3. Experiences in Mediation and Training . . . . .	187
Chapter 8. The Concept of Experience in John Dewey's Aesthetic Pragmatism: What are the Consequences for Cultural Mediation in the Museum? . . . . .	189
Jérôme HENNEBERT
8.1. Introduction . . . . .	189
8.2. Aesthetic theory before John Dewey. . . . .	191

8.3. John Dewey's aesthetic pragmatism: the continuity of art and existence . . . . .	195
8.4. Towards a descriptive redefinition of cultural mediation in museums . . . . .	198
8.5. Conclusion . . . . .	203
8.6. References . . . . .	203
Chapter 9. A Step Towards Experience Design in Museums . . . . .	205
Daniel SCHMITT and Virginie BLONDEAU
9.1. Visitor experience and experience design . . . . .	205
9.2. Reducing the concept of experience . . . . .	206
9.3. REMIND, a method of accessing experience . . . . .	207
9.4. Objectifying visitor experience: the Iguane marin . . . . .	209
9.4.1. Analysis of the installation . . . . .	211
9.5. Objectifying your own experience: the Louise de Bettignies project . . . . .	212
9.6. A step closer to experience design? . . . . .	214
9.7. References . . . . .	215
Chapter 10. Towards Teaching Focused on the "Bridging Experience": the Case of Urban Learning through Site Visits. . . . . .	217
Smaïl KHAINNAR
10.1. Introduction . . . . .	217
10.2. Theoretical part: experience, and bridging experience in pedagogy . . . . .	219
10.2.1. Experience: some conceptual milestones . . . . .	219
10.2.2. What place is there for the bridging experience in pedagogy? . . . . .	220
10.3. Application part: two site visits as experiential situations . . . . .	222
10.3.1. Research methodology and experimental protocol . . . . .	222
10.3.2. Results and discussion . . . . .	224
10.4. Conclusion and possibilities . . . . .	226
10.5. References . . . . .	227
Chapter 11. Design Games and Game Design: Relations Between Design, Codesign and Serious Games in Adult Education . . . . .	229
Julian ALVAREZ, Olivier IRRMANN, Damien DJAOUTI, Antoine TALY, Olivier RAMPNOUX and Louise SAUVÉ
11.1. Introduction . . . . .	229
11.2. Definitions . . . . .	230
11.2.1. Design and codesign . . . . .	230

11.2.2. Design games . . . . .	231
11.2.3. Games . . . . .	232
11.2.4. Serious games . . . . .	232
11.2.5. Game design . . . . .	233
11.2.6. Gamification . . . . .	234
11.3. Exploring the links between design and serious games . . . . .	235
11.3.1. Design games and serious games . . . . .	235
11.3.2. Design games and game design . . . . .	235
11.4. The main approaches to designing a serious game . . . . .	239
11.4.1. Identification of different approaches . . . . .	239
11.4.2. Serious game design. . . . .	241
11.4.3. Gamification . . . . .	242
11.4.4. Degamification . . . . .	243
11.4.5. Serious gaming . . . . .	245
