
Contents

Preface	ix
Introduction	xiii
Part 1. Epistemological Foundations	1
Introduction to Part 1	3
Chapter 1. The Art of Discourse: Rhetoric	7
1.1. Thinking, speaking out, persuading	7
1.2. Ethos, pathos, logos	9
1.3. The rhetorical system	10
1.3.1. Invention	11
1.3.2. The Disposition	14
1.3.3. Elocution	17
1.3.4. The action	19
1.3.5. The memory	20
1.4. Contemporary rhetoric	21
Chapter 2. Discourse Analysis	25
2.1. What do we mean by discourse?	25
2.2. A diversity of points of view	27
2.3. The different approaches in discourse analysis	30
2.3.1. The enunciative approach	30
2.3.2. The communication approach	35
2.3.3. The sociolinguistic approach	38
2.3.4. Interactionist and conversational approaches	46

2.3.5. The pragmatic approach	52
2.3.6. The semiological approach	55
Chapter 3. Interdiscourse	61
3.1. Bakhtin and Foucault	61
3.2. Verbal interaction	64
3.2.1. Dialogism and polyphony	64
3.2.2. Further developments	66
3.3. Sociohistorical approach	70
3.3.1. The statement	70
3.3.2. Discursive formation	71
3.3.3. Discourse control procedures	76
3.3.4. The method of analysis	84
Chapter 4. Discourse and Communication	91
4.1. The problem of communication	91
4.2. Linguistics and discourse	94
4.3. The communicability of sense and reference	96
4.4. The communicability of the force of discourse	99
4.5. The communicability of noetic intention.	101
Part 2. Discourse Analyses Developed in the Information and Communication Sciences	105
Introduction to Part 2	107
Chapter 5. Sociolinguistic Analysis	109
5.1. A brief history of discourse analysis	109
5.2. The interdisciplinarity of discourse analysis	112
5.3. Discourse analysis and comprehensive sociology	116
5.4. Other approaches to discourse analysis	117
Chapter 6. Content Analysis	119
6.1. Production conditions for statements	120
6.2. Empirical description of attitudes and opinions.	122
6.3. More linguistic methods	125
6.4. Taxonomic analysis	131
6.5. Systematic analysis	135
6.6. Observation or experimentation	136

Chapter 7. Documentary Analysis	139
7.1. Representation of the content	139
7.2. Index and concordances	141
7.3. Documentary interpretation	142
7.4. The Syntol system	147
7.5. Metalanguage	148
7.5.1. The three components of metalanguage	148
7.5.2. The basic relational unit	150
7.5.3. The calculation of relationships	151
7.5.4. The procedure for interpreting a text	151
Chapter 8. Logometry	153
8.1. What is logometry?	154
8.1.1. The question of the corpus	154
8.1.2. The units of the text	158
8.1.3. Quantitative and qualitative tools	160
8.2. The logometric approach	164
8.2.1. Logometry, between reading and interpretation	165
8.2.2. The descriptive and heuristic capacity of logometry	165
8.2.3. Going beyond the hypothetical-deductive method	167
8.3. Logometric software	168
8.3.1. Morphosyntax lemmatizers and analysers	169
8.3.2. Logometry software	170
8.3.3. The TXM platform	171
8.4. Conclusion	172
8.4.1. Number has meaning	172
8.4.2. Meaning comes from context	172
8.4.3. An alphanumeric study of texts	173
Conclusion	175
References	177
Index of Names	191
Index of Common Terms	195