

---

Contents

---

Introduction . . . . .	ix
Chapter 1. Manufacturing the Organization, Manufacturing Scripts . . . . .	1
1.1. Pragmatic sociology and the pragmatism of scripts . . . . .	1
1.1.1. A few requirements. . . . .	1
1.1.2. A few trials . . . . .	9
1.1.3. Following the scripts in action . . . . .	12
1.2. Setting the stage . . . . .	21
1.2.1. Two gray suits at the Belmont bar . . . . .	21
1.2.2. A parade of participants . . . . .	24
1.3. Moeva “Beta”: building a theatre of operations . . . . .	28
1.3.1. The English temptation and the IBM test. . . . .	28
1.3.2. “We want to think for ourselves!” . . . . .	30
1.3.3. Writing the management script: its manufactured-manufacturing making . . . . .	33
1.3.4. What happens in a recruiter’s office? . . . . .	37
1.4. Extension and celebration . . . . .	39
1.4.1. Going forward, even blindly . . . . .	39
1.4.2. Making newcomers into allies . . . . .	40
1.4.3. The first debates. . . . .	42
1.4.4. Self-glorification: setting the stage for September 2001 . . . . .	45
1.5. Years of continuous developments and testing . . . . .	47
1.5.1. The intranet mobility takes over the transformation of the modes of cooperation . . . . .	47
1.5.2. Third identity and access policies . . . . .	49
1.5.3. In search of external recognition . . . . .	50
1.5.4. “Villepin’s 100 days” . . . . .	51
1.5.5. Conflicts and paths of rationalities. . . . .	54

1.6. The designation and description of the scripts . . . . .	58
1.6.1. Scripts put to the test of professional criticism. . . . .	58
1.6.2. Naming and distinguishing scripts . . . . .	64
1.7. Models. . . . .	70
1.7.1. Cycles and dynamics. . . . .	70
1.7.2. Other dynamics . . . . .	75
Chapter 2. Performance: Out of Bounds (and Beyond Language) . . . . .	81
2.1. The question of performativity, at the heart of the production of digital organizations. . . . .	81
2.1.1. Inheritance and openings . . . . .	81
2.1.2. On the extension of performance . . . . .	97
2.1.3. Performance: a discussion on the proposed configurations of M. Callon . . . . .	101
2.2. Digital organizational assemblages: towards a general narratique. . . . .	106
2.2.1. Stories: Theorico-orthodox and desirable performances. . . . .	106
2.2.2. The narratique: self-referentiality and autopoiesis dimensions . . . . .	115
2.2.3. Narrative and celebratory practices (examples of intranets). . . . .	121
2.2.4. Hetero-poietic narratives connected to outside forces . . . . .	128
2.2.5. “Revolutionary” narratives and innovative reasoning . . . . .	134
2.2.6. From a “network-centric” narrative to a “data-centric” narrative: the breviary of recent years . . . . .	140
2.3. The case of Open Data public policies: the processes of performance at work . . . . .	157
2.3.1. On maintaining the desire for data and barometers . . . . .	158
2.3.2. Visualizations and format pivots: techno-political writings . . . . .	166
Chapter 3. Monitoring Assemblages and their Semiopolitics in Action . . . . .	173
3.1. Interfaces and semiopolitical regimes . . . . .	173
3.1.1. Machines and interfaces: some pointers . . . . .	174
3.1.2. Molar/molecular and D/T/R. . . . .	179
3.1.3. Organizational semiopolitic regimes . . . . .	184
3.1.4. A digital and organizational spatium . . . . .	198
3.1.5. Case study: digital discrimination at work . . . . .	207
3.2. Corporate sociodigital economy. . . . .	217
3.2.1. Data management and social engineering . . . . .	217
3.2.2. Views of the network . . . . .	223
3.2.3. Opacity/transparency. . . . .	224
3.2.4. Recommendations . . . . .	226
3.2.5. Graphs . . . . .	228
3.2.6. Organizational network analysis . . . . .	230

3.3. Prospects for the analysis of sociodigital assemblages . . . . .	232
3.3.1. A polemology of networks? . . . . .	232
3.3.2. Conflicts in networks: employees on the Web . . . . .	234
3.3.3. Digital methods at work . . . . .	245
3.3.4. Inhabiting and describing the assemblages: a program in the service of the analyses of the organization and managerial approaches involving digital humanities . . . . .	262
Bibliography . . . . .	273
Index . . . . .	291