
Contents

Author Presentation	xi
Introduction	xix
Andrea CATELLANI and Grégoire LITS
Chapter 1. Challenges to the Agroecological Transition: Can We Talk About “Agribashing” in France?	1
François ALLARD-HUVER
1.1. Introduction	1
1.2. “Agribashing”, a formula?	3
1.3. Inclusion in the media agenda	4
1.4. Disqualification of dissenting voices.	8
1.5. Conclusion	10
1.6. References	11
Chapter 2. A “Showcase Agriculture” Around Cities? Urban Food Policies, a Communication Tool for Farmers’ Organizations	15
Jeanne PAHUN
2.1. The agricultural aspects of urban food policies	16
2.2. Collaborations between local agricultural elites and municipal or metropolitan teams	18
2.3. Communication issues at the heart of collaborations between local agricultural elites and urban centers	19
2.4. Conclusion	21
2.5. References	22

Chapter 3. Local Conflicts Around Creative Development Projects	25
Bruno LEFÈVRE
3.1. Local public spaces that “repoliticize” public decision-making	26
3.2. Local tensions generated by challenging the frames of thought and modalities of construction of public decision-making.	28
3.3. Objects of the conflict configured by mediated discourses.	30
3.4. Consultation mechanisms and bodies ineffective for shared construction of the project	32
3.5. Conclusion	36
3.6. References	37
Chapter 4. Mid-Mountains in Transition: From Tension to Relatedness	39
Amélie COULBAUT-LAZZARINI
4.1. Mid-mountains in transition: context, questions and methods	39
4.1.1. Transitions, deconfinements and links to the environment	39
4.1.2. Transitions, questions and methods	40
4.2. Mid-mountains, mediation and models of society: communication as basis for a common project?	41
4.2.1. Socio-environmental measures for implementing links	42
4.2.2. Humorous visual communication	42
4.2.3. Human mediators to be found	44
4.2.4. From the visual to the sensory: guides, treasure hunts and giant animals.	44
4.3. Conclusion/questions for consideration: relatedness, key to development for the mid-mountains?	46
4.4. References	47
Chapter 5. The Mountains in Transition: Introducing Scientific Culture into Tourism Under the Influence of “All Skiing”	49
Mikaël CHAMBRU, Cécilia CLAEYS and Quentin DAVEAU
5.1. Introduction	49
5.2. A tourism diversification project deprived of its scientific territorialities	50
5.3. A scientific tourism project derailed by the influence of winter tourism	52
5.4. Conclusion	53
5.5. References	54
Chapter 6. Offshore Wind Power on Facebook: “Reframing” Media Coverage of the Energy Transition	57
Catherine QUIROGA CORTÉS
6.1. Methodological approach	58
6.2. Results	60

6.2.1. Observation of Facebook use	60
6.2.2. Characterization and comparison of discourses	60
6.3. Conclusion	65
6.4. References	66
Chapter 7. “Y’a le feu au lac!”: Podcasts and Ecological Transitions.	69
Erika RIBERI and Pauline AMIEL
7.1. Method	70
7.2. Results	74
7.2.1. Diversity of dimensions	74
7.2.2. Plurality of actors	74
7.2.3. Possible courses of action	75
7.3. Conclusion	77
7.4. References	78
Chapter 8. Analyzing an Ecological Controversy on YouTube: Obstacles and Methodological Issues.	79
Bi Mathieu TRA, Jean-Claude DOMENGET and Orélie DESFRICHES-DORIA
8.1. Introduction	79
8.2. Addressing a controversy on socio-digital media: epistemological pluralism	81
8.3. Methodological approaches	83
8.4. Conclusion	89
8.5. References	90
Chapter 9. Sustainability Transitions in Tension: Sustainability Transitions in the Discourse of Eco-Shaming	93
Kimberley VANDENHOLE
9.1. Sustainability transition: what’s in a name?	93
9.2. Analysis of the eco-shaming discourse and its notion of sustainability transitions	94
9.3. Sustainability transition in the eco-shaming discourse	95
9.4. One sustainability transition among others	98
9.5. Conclusion	99
9.6. References	99
Chapter 10. Discursive Controversies Around Electric Vehicles in France: Between Ecological Transition and Doubt.	101
Albin WAGENER
10.1. Introduction	101
10.2. Theoretical and methodological framework	102

10.3. Corpus	104
10.4. Narrative analysis	110
10.5. Conclusion	112
10.6. References	112
Chapter 11. What Has Ecological Transition Become the Name for?	115
Brigitte SEBBAH and Natacha SOUILLARD
11.1. Between the groundswell and the economic situation, the ecological transition buffeted but central	117
11.2. Ecological transition: a depoliticized expert notion	120
11.3. Implementing the ecological transition, between territorial economic development and a changing world	121
11.4. Conclusion	125
11.5. References	126
Chapter 12. Labels as a Process of Institutionalization of Environmental Themes.	129
Catherine LONEUX and Céline PASCUAL ESPUNY
12.1. Regulation and communication	131
12.2. Regulation and societal change	132
12.3. References	137
Chapter 13. Comparative Analysis of Ecologist Discourses Produced for the Web in France.	139
Jules DILÉ-TOUSTOU
13.1. Ecology at the heart of a semantic struggle	140
13.2. Selection of organizations representative of the ecologist struggle in France and distinguishing their info-communicational methods.	142
13.3. Textometric analysis of discourse on websites	145
13.4. Discussion.	147
13.5. Appendix: list of field observations.	149
13.6. References	149
Chapter 14. Contrastive Analysis of Enunciation in Digital Citizen Participation.	153
Antoine GABORIAU and Catherine DOMINGUÈS
14.1. Introduction.	153
14.2. Production of the positioning of the enunciator	155
14.3. Objects of the discourse linked to the enunciator	157
14.4. Conclusion	161
14.5. References	162

Chapter 15. Political Mediations in the Case of Energy Transition: Deep Geothermal Energy as Perceived by Local Residents	163
Cyrille BODIN, Philippe CHAVOT, Anne MASSERAN, Yeny SERRANO and Jean ZOUNGRANA
15.1. Evaluating the benefits and risks of deep geothermal energy.	165
15.2. The challenges and shortcomings of a policy of popularization	167
15.3. Conclusion: reinventing territorial political mediations of the energy transition?	168
15.4. References	169
List of Authors	171
Index	175