
Contents

Prologue	xi
Introduction	xv
Chapter 1. What is a Brand?	1
1.1. The brand: a concept built from relationships	1
1.2. The brand is anthropomimetic	3
1.3. The brand as merchant.	4
1.3.1. Exaggeration	4
1.3.2. Celebrity	6
1.3.3. A matrix for modeling celebrity?	7
1.3.4. Fallibility	9
1.3.5. Exaggeration, fame and fallibility: the trio from hell	11
1.4. The Brand exposed.	12
1.5. All Brands are controversial	13
1.6. Leader? Tough luck!.	16
1.7. The Brand is not set up for conflict	18
1.8. The Brand is not always agile (and that is an understatement).	19
1.9. The irrational reactions of the Brand	21
Chapter 2. Conflict	25
2.1. Etymology of conflict	25
2.2. What is a conflict?	26
2.3. When is there a conflict?	27
2.4. Conflict is complex	27
2.5. Experts of a small piece of the whole	28
2.6. Conflict can be an asset	29
2.7. The words of attackers are traps	29

2.8. The words you use are also traps	31
2.9. (Here) conflict is not....	32
2.9.1. Conflict is not latent hostility	32
2.9.2. Conflict is not an accident	33
2.9.3. Conflict is not a judicial procedure	34
2.9.4. Conflict is not a game.	34
2.9.5. Conflict is not a crisis	35
2.10. The characteristics of conflict.	36
2.11. What do you think of when someone says conflict?	37
2.12. When someone says conflict, what should you think about?	38
2.13. What Sun Tzu has to say.	38
2.14. What Simmel thinks	39
Chapter 3. The Players in Conflicts	41
3.1. The five agents of conflict	41
3.2. The “attacked” is the Brand.	42
3.3. The attacker	43
3.3.1. Deciphering it in 12 points.	44
3.3.2. Who are they? Are they isolated individuals, connected individuals or aggregate groups?	45
3.3.3. What is their level of cohesion, unity?	46
3.3.4. What are the official reasons presented?	46
3.3.5. What is their expected benefit?	46
3.3.6. What is their strategy: destroying confidence, preventing activity?	47
3.3.7. What are their beliefs, and how deep do they go?	48
3.3.8. How intense is their commitment? Are they ready to “go all the way” with it?	48
3.3.9. What is their history with the Brand? Among the critics, are there any who have been employees, customers or competitors of the Brand?	49
3.3.10. What is their level of interconnection or differentiation with the Brand?	50
3.3.11. What are their supports, their backers, their alliances?	50
3.3.12. What are their strengths and their means (financial, intellectual, media, etc.)?	51
3.4. The expected benefits	51
3.4.1. Weakening (winning is a failure)	52
3.4.2. Obtaining the recognition of harm	53
3.4.3. Obtaining reparations	54
3.4.4. Revenge.	54

3.4.5. Correcting	55
3.4.6. Prevention	55
3.4.7. Destruction	55
3.4.8. What the attacker wants to damage	56
3.5. Allies	57
3.6. The audience	58
3.6.1. Immature humor, more than ever	59
3.6.2. Do not touch the nice ones	61
3.7. The arbitrators	62
Chapter 4. Hostility, from Yesterday to Today	65
4.1. The places, times and forms of conflict	65
4.2. The competition	65
4.3. The public square.	66
4.4. The court	67
4.5. The borders of conflict: between separation and the contact zone.	67
4.6. The temporality of conflict	68
4.7. What do the conflicts that engage the brand look like?	68
4.8. Guerrilla warfare and terrorism, excellent value for money	69
4.8.1. The fly’s strategy	70
4.9. Scandal	71
4.10. Alert launchers	74
4.11. The social dynamics of conflict.	76
4.12. Skepticism and modernity	77
4.13. Conspiracy theorizing	78
4.14. The scapegoat	79
4.15. The mystery of herd behaviors	83
4.16. Rumors.	84
4.17. The crowd	85
4.18. Lynching.	87
4.19. Trust, the first victim of conflict	88
Chapter 5. The Techniques of Conflict	95
5.1. Old methods “botoxed” for the digital age	95
5.1.1. The trap hoax	95
5.1.2. Denigration	100
5.1.3. Petitions	101
5.1.4. Boycott and buycott	102
5.2. New digital techniques	105
5.2.1. Astroturfing	105
5.2.2. Persona management.	110

5.2.3. Google bombing	110
5.2.4. Trolling.	111
5.2.5. Denial of service attacks.	114
5.3. Databases as a tool for scandal-mongering	115
Chapter 6. Preparing for Conflict	117
6.1. Building a strong brand.	117
6.1.1. Brand ladder	120
6.1.2. Identity prism	120
6.1.3. The pyramid of qualities.	120
6.2. The narrative scheme	121
6.3. Stabilizing opinions	125
6.4. The art of the reply	127
6.4.1. Managing conflict from the start	129
6.4.2. Knowing the forces in play: the absolute obligation	129
6.4.3. Organize yourself.	130
6.4.4. You have a point of view... Say it, loud and clear	131
6.4.5. Train your teams	131
6.4.6. Take charge on social networks	132
Chapter 7. Acting in Conflict	135
7.1. Five possible reactions to attack.	135
7.1.1. The silent expectation	136
7.1.2. Indifference	136
7.1.3. Negotiation	136
7.1.4. Commitment.	137
7.1.5. Capitulation	137
7.2. Can we refuse to acknowledge that we are wrong?	137
7.3. Apologizing costs less than it pays	139
7.4. Apologies and low points	141
7.5. The Streisand effect	142
7.6. Are you going there? Keep zen and in control	143
7.7. Keep a conflict journal	145
7.8. Orchestrate engagement techniques	147
7.8.1. Public debate	147
7.8.2. One-upmanship – the fatal embrace	148
7.8.3. Exhaustion.	149
7.8.4. Make jokes, not war	149
7.9. Tell a story that is stronger and more appealing than the attacker.	152
7.10. Tweak and revise your actantial model.	153

7.11. Imagine the actantial model of the attacker	154
7.12. Adopt your assertiveness, even by forcing yourself a little	155
7.13. Conflict is a theater of improvisation	157
7.14. Prepare to be spontaneous	158
7.15. Attention to detail	160
7.16. Seven tips and tricks to improvise without fear	162
7.17. The semiotic square: judo instead of boxing.	163
7.18. Moving conflict onto new terrain	165
7.19. The merchants of doubt	168
Conclusion	171
Epilogue	177
Appendix	179
Bibliography	183
Index	185
Index of Brands	187