Foreword to Géopolitique de l'énergie Published in 2008 – A Tribute to Jean-Marie Chevalier . . . . .	xi
Introduction . . . . .	xv
Chapter 1. Different Forms of Energy . . . . .	1
1.1. Energy at the heart of the development of civilization . . . . .	1
1.2. Energy: major stages and innovations in its history . . . . .	2
1.3. Energy demand . . . . .	3
1.4. 2020: Covid-19's impact on energy demand . . . . .	5
1.5. Drivers of energy demand: wealth . . . . .	5
1.6. Different forms of energy . . . . .	8
1.6.1. Main forms of energy . . . . .	8
1.6.2. Fossil fuels and renewable energies . . . . .	8
1.7. The laws of energy . . . . .	10
1.8. Electricity . . . . .	13
1.8.1. Electricity generation . . . . .	15
1.8.2. The atom: will it lead to the third energy revolution? . . . . .	19
1.8.3. Distribution and commercialization of electricity . . . . .	21
1.8.4. Electricity: end-use . . . . .	22
1.9. Renewable energy . . . . .	23
1.10. Oil: the reference energy . . . . .	24
1.10.1. The characteristics of oil . . . . .	24
1.10.2. The origins of oil . . . . .	26
1.11. From oil exploration to oil marketing . . . . .	28
1.11.1. Oil exploration . . . . .	28
1.11.2. Oil production . . . . .	29
1.11.3. Oil transport . . . . .	31
1.11.4. Oil processing: refining principles and end-uses for products . . . . .	33

1.11.5. Marketing and distribution of petroleum products . . . . .	37
1.12. Natural gas . . . . .	38
1.12.1. Natural gas: exploration and production. . . . .	38
1.12.2. Natural gas processing . . . . .	39
1.12.3. Natural gas transport . . . . .	39
1.12.4. Use of natural gas . . . . .	40
1.13. Coal . . . . .	42
1.13.1. Origin of coal . . . . .	43
1.13.2. Coal production . . . . .	43
1.13.3. Coal transport . . . . .	44
1.13.4. Coal end-use . . . . .	44
1.14. Conclusion . . . . .	45
Chapter 2. The Energy Transition . . . . .	47
2.1. Defining the energy transition . . . . .	47
2.2. Why do we need an energy transition?. . . . .	48
2.2.1. Climate change and the greenhouse effect . . . . .	48
2.2.2. Developments in climate negotiations . . . . .	48
2.3. The main ways of combating climate change . . . . .	50
2.3.1. Economic tools: regulations . . . . .	50
2.3.2. Economic tools: taxes . . . . .	50
2.3.3. Economic tools: emissions markets . . . . .	50
2.3.4. Energy savings . . . . .	51
2.3.5. Carbon capture, utilization and storage . . . . .	52
2.3.6. Fuel switching (from coal to gas in particular). . . . .	52
2.3.7. Renewable energies. . . . .	53
2.4. The challenges facing renewable energies. . . . .	63
2.4.1. The availability of critical metals and the problem of scrap. . . . .	64
2.4.2. The social impacts of mining . . . . .	64
2.4.3. Intermittency and cost . . . . .	64
2.4.4. Space requirements for solar and wind farms . . . . .	64
2.5. The hydrogen solution. . . . .	65
2.6. Is the energy transition possible?. . . . .	66
2.6.1. Carbon neutrality . . . . .	68
2.6.2. Can we achieve carbon neutrality by 2050? . . . . .	68
2.6.3. Issues of international justice and equity . . . . .	69
2.6.4. The geopolitical race to renewable energies . . . . .	70
2.7. Energy and sociology . . . . .	72
2.8. International oil companies: “Beyond Petroleum” . . . . .	73
2.9. Conclusion . . . . .	73

Chapter 3. Energy Markets and Prices: Situation and Outlook . . . . .	75
3.1. Introduction: markets and prices . . . . .	75
3.2. An introduction to the electricity market . . . . .	77
3.3. An introduction to the gas market . . . . .	77
3.4. The first gas and electricity companies . . . . .	78
3.5. The rise of interventionism after World War II . . . . .	79
3.6. The 1970s: the resource issue and the economic crisis . . . . .	80
3.7. The example of the UK energy sector . . . . .	81
3.8. The example of the US energy sector . . . . .	82
3.9. Towards a single electricity market in the European Union . . . . .	83
3.10. Characteristics of electricity markets . . . . .	85
3.11. Wholesale and retail electricity market. . . . .	86
3.12. The electricity business . . . . .	87
3.13. The price of electricity. . . . .	87
3.14. The role of renewable energies in electricity markets. . . . .	89
3.15. Historical trends in oil prices – price control by the majors and OPEC . . . . .	89
3.16. Historical trends in oil prices: end of the 20th century . . . . .	92
3.17. Historical trends in oil prices: 2000–2014 . . . . .	93
3.18. Historical trends in oil prices since 2014. . . . .	96
3.19. The impact of oil prices on demand . . . . .	98
3.20. High oil prices: how do they affect supply? . . . . .	99
3.21. Who will make the necessary investments in exploration and production? . . . . .	100
3.21.1. International oil companies. . . . .	100
3.21.2. National companies . . . . .	101
3.22. Prices of petroleum products . . . . .	102
3.23. Pump price: taxes on petroleum products . . . . .	103
3.24. Oil and taxation. . . . .	104
3.25. Price of natural gas. . . . .	106
3.26. Price of coal. . . . .	109
3.27. The uranium market . . . . .	109
3.28. Oil reserves . . . . .	110
3.29. Unconventional oil reserves. . . . .	113
3.30. Concentration of hydrocarbon reserves. . . . .	115
3.31. Conquest of the Arctic . . . . .	116
3.32. Exploitation of the seabed’s soil and subsoil resources . . . . .	117
3.33. Natural gas reserves . . . . .	117
3.34. Coal reserves . . . . .	118
3.35. Uranium reserves. . . . .	118
3.36. Future energy needs . . . . .	119
3.37. Pollution issues. . . . .	121

3.38. Accidents . . . . .	124
3.39. Conclusion: an uncertain outlook; future energy needs . . . . .	131
Chapter 4. Structure of the Energy Industries:
Security of Supply . . . . .	133
4.1. Introduction . . . . .	133
4.2. Natural monopolies and effects of size . . . . .	133
4.3. The petroleum industry: international oil companies and national oil companies . . . . .	134
4.4. The oil industry: post-war years and the creation of OPEC . . . . .	136
4.5. Nationalization in oil-producing countries . . . . .	136
4.6. The years 1980–1990: OPEC’s loss of power – members’ interests diverge. . . . .	137
4.7. Back to liberalism . . . . .	138
4.8. Situation in developing countries. . . . .	139
4.9. Ethics and energy . . . . .	140
4.10. Other often forgotten players . . . . .	141
4.10.1. International organizations . . . . .	141
4.10.2. Economic and political interests: lobbies . . . . .	142
4.10.3. Civil society . . . . .	143
4.10.4. Research and training institutes . . . . .	143
4.10.5. Criminal movements . . . . .	143
4.11. Evolving strategies . . . . .	144
4.12. Energy policies and security of supplies . . . . .	144
4.13. Supply security: solutions offered by the market . . . . .	146
4.14. How to improve supply security . . . . .	146
4.14.1. An example: energy efficiency in the European Union . . . . .	147
4.14.2. Diversification of energy sources . . . . .	147
4.14.3. Geographical diversification of supply sources. . . . .	148
4.15. Means of supply . . . . .	149
4.15.1. Pipelines . . . . .	149
4.15.2. Gas pipelines. . . . .	154
4.15.3. Power networks . . . . .	156
4.16. Coal . . . . .	158
4.17. Threats to energy supplies: the risk of physical failure of transport networks . . . . .	158
4.17.1. Ground transport infrastructure. . . . .	158
4.17.2. Strategic geographical channels (straits and canals) . . . . .	159
4.17.3. Growing competition in the Arctic. . . . .	162
4.18. Securing hydrocarbon supplies militarily . . . . .	162
4.18.1. The American military monopoly . . . . .	162
4.18.2. Being a “free rider” . . . . .	164
4.18.3. China’s Indo-Pacific strategy. . . . .	164

4.19. Strategic stocks . . . . .	165
4.19.1. The role of strategic stocks . . . . .	165
4.19.2. International Energy Agency and European Union compulsory stock obligations . . . . .	166
4.19.3. European Union compulsory stock obligation . . . . .	166
4.19.4. France’s strategic stocks . . . . .	167
4.19.5. The special case of the American Strategic Petroleum Reserve (SPR) . .	169
4.20. The energy transition and its strategic challenges . . . . .	170
4.20.1. Rare and critical materials . . . . .	170
4.20.2. Technology. . . . .	171
4.21. Conclusion . . . . .	172
