
Contents

Preface	ix
Introduction	xi
Chapter 1. Understanding the Economic World	1
1.1. A consumer society pushed to its limits	1
1.1.1. A faltering economic system	1
1.1.2. An economic shock for consumers?	3
1.1.3. Making what sells, to sell	3
1.1.4. The production society.	4
1.1.5. The commodification of the world: finance	4
1.1.6. Globalization	6
1.1.7. GDP: no longer the right indicator.	8
1.2. Economic and political approach	11
1.2.1. The act of consumption	11
1.2.2. The act of purchasing	13
1.2.3. The economic act	14
1.2.4. The political act	15
1.2.5. Greenwashing	15
1.2.6. Buying: a way to have fun.	16
1.2.7. Economic theories	18
1.2.8. Modes of consumption.	20
1.2.9. Supply and demand.	21
1.2.10. Purchasing power	23
1.3. Desirable development	24

Chapter 2. Cultural Approach	29
2.1. Cultural facts	29
2.1.1. The culture of choice: choices as a cultural fact	29
2.1.2. Cultural choices	30
2.1.3. Cultural diversity	31
2.1.4. Objects as signals, ostentations	32
2.1.5. Groupthink, fashion and social evidence	34
2.1.6. Socio-culture	36
2.1.7. Trends and behaviors.	37
2.2. The desire for products	37
2.3. The image society and the virtual society	41
2.3.1. The image society	41
2.3.2. The virtual society	42
2.4. Qualities of life.	43
2.4.1. Well-being with products	43
2.4.2. Ways of life	50
2.4.3. Lifestyles.	52
2.4.4. Standards of living	53
2.4.5. Over-consumption	54
Chapter 3. What Information Do We Need to Pick the Right Product?	57
3.1. Choice of products.	57
3.1.1. The problem with choice	57
3.1.2. The process of choice	59
3.1.3. The frustration of choice.	62
3.2. What is usage?	65
3.2.1. The problem with usage	65
3.2.2. The field of use	66
3.3. The indispensable: usage and environmental factors	73
3.3.1. Usage qualities	73
3.3.2. Environmental qualities	75
3.4. Evaluating the usage requirements and performances for choice	80
3.4.1. The analysis of usage/the criteria of evaluation	80
3.4.2. How to evaluate usage qualities	82
3.4.3. The price and cost of usage	91
3.4.4. Habitual suitability	92
3.5. Proposals for product information	97
3.5.1. Conditions and information requirements on products	97
3.5.2. Proposal of product information systems: dust removal method study	99
3.5.3. Information in the instructions for use	105

3.5.4. Proposals for distributors and major buyers	106
3.5.5. Information systems for users	108
3.5.6. Help with product selection: product typologies.	110
3.5.7. Case study: creation of an information system for toys	110
Conclusion	117
Appendices	123
Appendix 1. Information Sheet on Toys	125
Appendix 2. Information System for Products – CCI	129
Appendix 3. The Risks of Domestic Accidents Related to Products and Equipment	131
Appendix 4. User Impairment: Risks and Difficulties	151
Appendix 5. Information Sheet on Products	159
Appendix 6. Interior Space for Showering while Standing Up or Sitting Down	163
Appendix 7. Information Sheet on Products	165
Appendix 8. Study on Vacuum Cleaners	169
Appendix 9. Facades of Appliances (Case Study)	177
Appendix 10. Shower Heads: What Sprays and Handles to Choose?	181
References	189
Index	193