
Contents

List of Acronyms	ix
Preface	xi
Introduction	xv
Part 1. Theoretical Foundations: Innovation for Development, the Rise of a New Discourse	1
Chapter 1. The Project of Development as a Discourse	3
1.1. Discourses, framings and narratives	4
1.1.1. The order of the discourse	4
1.1.2. Framings and narratives	7
1.2. Development as a discourse: underdevelopment and “the others”	9
1.2.1. After post-development: the contemporary situation	15
1.2.2. Technology, innovation and development: a contested political field	18
1.3. Conclusion	20
Chapter 2. The Cross-fertilization of Innovation into the Lexicon of Development	23
2.1. Economic development and the role of innovation	25
2.1.1. Growth theories and innovation	25
2.1.2. Evolutionary theory and innovation systems	27
2.1.3. Innovation systems and developing countries	29

2.2. Reviewing the innovation and development literature.	32
2.2.1. Resource-constrained innovation (RCI): bricolage, frugality and jugaad	34
2.2.2. The fortune at the Bottom of the Pyramid	38
2.2.3. Critics of the BOP approach	40
2.2.4. Appropriate technology and grassroots innovations	41
2.2.5. “Inclusion”: an emerging discursive bridge	45
2.3. Conclusions.	47
Part 2. Learning from the Field	53
Introduction to Part 2	55
Chapter 3. The Tale of the Poor as Market-led Consumers	57
3.1. Grameen Shakti	58
3.1.1. Creating resource-constrained innovation	60
3.1.2. The green sub-narrative	65
3.1.3. Institutional weaknesses and voids.	68
3.1.4. Empathy and creating social value.	69
3.2. Grameen Shakti’s overall innovation and development narrative	71
3.3. Conclusion	76
Chapter 4. The Tale of the Poor as Market-led Co-producers	79
4.1. The case of Mother Earth.	80
4.1.1. The Industree ecosystem	80
4.1.2. The problems of rural production	84
4.1.3. Transforming production	87
4.1.4. Mother Earth’s educating mission	89
4.2. Mother Earth’s overall innovation and development narrative	93
4.3. Conclusion	98
Chapter 5. The Tale of “Inclusive Business Models”	99
5.1. The case of the Indian Institute of Management Bangalore (IIMB)	100
5.1.1. IIMB’s mission as a project of Western-inspired modernity	100

5.1.2. An “Indian way to modernity”	105
5.1.3. Inclusive business models and inclusive innovation	107
5.2. IIMB’s overall innovation and development narrative	110
5.3. Conclusion	114
Chapter 6. The Tale of Science, Technology and Innovation for Social Revolution.	117
6.1. The case of the People’s Science Movements (PSMs)	118
6.1.1. Competing narratives of science, technology and development in independent India	118
6.1.2. Pro-poor innovation for productive networks	121
6.1.3. Innovation as a political artifact	126
6.2. The People’s Science Movements’ overall innovation and development narrative	131
6.3. Conclusion	133
Chapter 7. The Politics at the Bottom of the Pyramid	135
7.1. Words, meanings and politics	137
7.1.2. Comparing the case studies	138
7.2. Self-help and inclusion: key buzzwords connecting innovation to development	144
7.2.1. Self-help	144
7.2.2. Inclusion	146
7.2.3. Some important limitations	147
7.3. Closing thoughts	149
Epilogue.	153
References	155
Index	179