

Contents

Introduction . . . . .	xiii
Pierre BECKOUCHE and Yann RICHARD
Chapter 1. From Regional Geography to the Geography of Regionalization . . . . .	1
Pierre BECKOUCHE and Yann RICHARD
1.1. Introduction . . . . .	1
1.2. 19th and 20th centuries: the hesitant paths of regionalization between intra-state regions and continents . . . . .	2
1.2.1. The legacy of the 18th century. . . . .	2
1.2.2. Vidal and the vidualians: lifestyles, cities and circulation . . . . .	2
1.3. 20th century: an early but timid emergence of the world. . . . .	4
1.3.1. The world as a chessboard . . . . .	4
1.3.2. The inter-war period: decline of Europe, the European region, Triad . . . . .	5
1.3.3. After World War II: global regions at last? . . . . .	6
1.3.4. The 1980s: the world as a system . . . . .	8
1.4. The turn of the 20th/21st century: relations between geographers and other disciplines are almost one way . . . . .	8
1.4.1. Economics reformulates the regional equation. . . . .	9
1.4.2. Trendy regionalism and multidisciplinary necessity. . . . .	9
1.4.3. Contributions and aporias of the civilizational paradigm . . . . .	11
1.5. References . . . . .	12
Chapter 2. The Regionalization of Migration . . . . .	17
Camille SCHMOLL
2.1. Introduction . . . . .	17
2.2. Regionalization: main characteristics . . . . .	18
2.2.1. A global trend... . . . .	18

2.2.2. ...particularly strong in Europe and Sub-Saharan Africa . . . . .	19
2.2.3. Contrasting developments . . . . .	20
2.2.4. The share of forced migration . . . . .	21
2.3. The region: a relational space, crossed by intense circulation . . . . .	22
2.3.1. Naming and describing the regionalization of migration. From the field to the migration system . . . . .	22
2.3.2. The region “from below”: a circulatory territory. . . . .	23
2.4. The political dimension: a crucial aspect for understanding the structuring of migrant regions . . . . .	24
2.4.1. From the migration system to the migration regime, a strong political connotation . . . . .	24
2.4.2. The double European migration regime. . . . .	25
2.5. Conclusion: the power of proximity . . . . .	25
2.6. References . . . . .	26
Chapter 3. Energy Supply: Comparison of Regional Experiences . . . . .	29
Angélique PALLE
3.1. Introduction . . . . .	29
3.2. Francophone approaches and determining factors of regional energy integration. . . . .	30
3.2.1. Approaches to francophone geography . . . . .	30
3.2.2. The determining factors of regional energy integration, a process combining several layers . . . . .	31
3.3. Regional energy integration models and the challenge of ecological transition. . . . .	33
3.3.1. Comparison of international energy integration dynamics and typology . . . . .	33
3.3.2. Is energy integration a response to the ecological transition? . . . . .	36
3.4. Conclusion . . . . .	37
3.5. References . . . . .	38
Chapter 4. Transport Systems and Regional Integration . . . . .	43
Antoine BEYER
4.1. Introduction . . . . .	43
4.2. Transport and circulation: key variables in the partition models of the world into large civilizational groups . . . . .	44
4.2.1. A global trend... . . . .	44
4.3. Globalized transport and hierarchical rearrangement of regional units . . . . .	46
4.4. Continental transport corridors, at the heart of regional integration projects . .	52
4.5. The difficulty of measuring the knock-on effects of transport corridors on regional economies . . . . .	55
4.6. TEN-T: political leverage for European integration . . . . .	56

4.7. Towards a regionalization of international transport law? . . . . .	58
4.8. Conclusion: the multidimensional construction of regional integrations through the lens of transport systems . . . . .	62
4.9. References . . . . .	63
Chapter 5. The Regionalization–Globalization Pair: A Reading of the Evolution of World Trade . . . . .	67
Gilles VAN HAMME
5.1. Introduction . . . . .	67
5.2. A methodology for analyzing regional and global dynamics . . . . .	69
5.3. The main lessons learned . . . . .	71
5.3.1. A regional organization of exchanges. . . . .	71
5.3.2. The deglobalization of the 2010s? . . . . .	73
5.3.3. What are the driving forces of these refocusing processes? . . . . .	76
5.4. Towards a reinterpretation of the regionalization–globalization dynamics . . . . .	77
5.4.1. From the migration regime, a strong political connotation . . . . .	77
5.5. Conclusion: a look at the production of francophone geography on these issues . . . . .	78
5.6. Appendix . . . . .	79
5.7. References . . . . .	80
Chapter 6. Stock Market Activity and the Regionalization Process . . . . .	83
Maude SAINTEVILLE
6.1. Introduction . . . . .	83
6.2. Regionalization in the practices of stock exchange activities: the case of cross-border listings . . . . .	84
6.2.1. Observing the regionalization of cross-border listings in the context of stock exchange activities . . . . .	84
6.2.2. Explaining regionalization through relational preferences . . . . .	86
6.2.3. Regionalization in the face of the 2007–2008 financial crisis. . . . .	86
6.3. Regionalization in the organization of the stock exchange activity: the construction of stock exchange groups . . . . .	87
6.3.1. The choice of regionalization for the organization of stock exchange groups? . . . . .	87
6.3.2. Regionalization favored by regional integration: the case of stock market activity within the European Union . . . . .	93
6.4. What role for regionalization in the evolution of stock market activity? . . . . .	94
6.5. Conclusion: the power of proximity . . . . .	96
6.6. References . . . . .	97

---

Chapter 7. The Runet, a Region of Cyberspace? . . . . .	99
Kevin LIMONIER
7.1. Introduction . . . . .	99
7.2. From the cultural to the political Runet: appropriation of the “upper layers” of cyberspace . . . . .	101
7.3. Control and dependencies on the lower layers of cyberspace . . . . .	105
7.4. Conclusion . . . . .	108
7.5. References . . . . .	109
Chapter 8. Security Regions: A Heterogeneous World Between Conflicts and Cooperation . . . . .	111
Emmanuel CHAUVIN
8.1. Introduction . . . . .	111
8.2. Regional security cooperation: globalization and diversification . . . . .	112
8.2.1. Security, the basis of regional construction. . . . .	112
8.2.2. Security for the regions: from defense to human security . . . . .	114
8.2.3. Regional security architectures: a variety of styles. . . . .	117
8.3. Realities and myths of the regionalization of insecurity . . . . .	118
8.3.1. Regional violence training . . . . .	119
8.3.2. Insecurities that recompose regions . . . . .	120
8.3.3. Imaginary figures of regional insecurities . . . . .	121
8.4. Conclusion . . . . .	122
8.5. References . . . . .	123
Chapter 9. African Integration in All Its Forms . . . . .	127
Géraud MAGRIN and Olivier NINOT
9.1. Introduction . . . . .	127
9.2. Regional paper integrations? . . . . .	128
9.2.1. Slow progress in regional integration . . . . .	128
9.2.2. Africa’s regions as seen from the outside. . . . .	131
9.3. African trade from below . . . . .	132
9.3.1. Historical relational areas that replay in the present . . . . .	133
9.3.2. The ambiguous potential of national peripheries. . . . .	133
9.3.3. The other side of the border . . . . .	134
9.4. Artifact-centered regionalizations . . . . .	135
9.4.1. International corridors: a tool for extraversion or support for regional markets? . . . . .	136
9.4.2. Environmental integration? . . . . .	137
9.5. Conclusion . . . . .	138
9.6. References . . . . .	139

---

Chapter 10. Europe, a Geographical Puzzle (A) . . . . .	145
Etienne TOUREILLE, Antoine LAPORTE and Claude GRASLAND
10.1. Introduction . . . . .	145
10.2. The various definitions of Europe. . . . .	146
10.2.1. Europe captured by the EU: the institutional tropism . . . . .	146
10.2.2. Europe-continent: a cumbersome ethnocentrism . . . . .	149
10.2.3. The geographer’s Europe: a whole to be (de)constructed, to be regionalized. . . . .	152
10.3. Finding the limits of Europe. . . . .	153
10.3.1. A plurality of approaches . . . . .	153
10.3.2. Limitations and perspectives . . . . .	156
10.3.3. Some ideas for reflection: returning to the deeper meaning of regionalization. . . . .	157
10.4. Conclusion: the geography of Europe, a psychoanalytical exercise for Europeans . . . . .	159
10.4.1. A necessarily plural and complex object . . . . .	160
10.4.2. Dividing the world into regions: a way to find our place in it . . . . .	160
10.5. References . . . . .	161
Chapter 11. Three Exercises in the Regionalization of Europe . . . . .	167
Antoine LAPORTE, Etienne TOUREILLE and Claude GRASLAND
11.1. Introduction: the search for Europe and three tracks for its quest . . . . .	167
11.2. Embassy networks in the world and the renewed place of European states . . . . .	169
11.3. Europe through the titles of regional IGOs: a perspective from Turkey . . . . .	172
11.4. Europe and world regions in the French national daily press (2013–2020). . . . .	176
11.5. Conclusion: Europe and the European Union, a complex and ever-changing landscape . . . . .	182
11.6. References . . . . .	183
Chapter 12. The Arctic, a (Macro)Region under Construction? . . . . .	185
Camille ESCUDÉ and Frédéric LASSERRE
12.1. Introduction . . . . .	185
12.2. The Arctic, a self-proclaimed region? The notion of region mobilized (or not) by the Arctic actors . . . . .	187
12.2.1. Belonging to the Arctic, previously politically mobilized . . . . .	187
12.2.2. Other minimal forms of belonging: economic, autonomous, scientific . . . . .	188
12.3. A region built mainly from above: institutional regionalism draws the boundaries of a contested region. . . . .	189
12.3.1. Protecting the environment: a pillar of regional integration . . . . .	189
12.3.2. External actors attempt to expand the political boundaries of the region. . . . .	191

12.4. Building a functional Arctic region from below? . . . . .	194
12.4.1. The weak regionalization of activities . . . . .	195
12.4.2. Regionalization of trade on a larger scale: the example of the Barents region . . . . .	197
12.5. Conclusion . . . . .	199
12.6. References . . . . .	201
Chapter 13. North America: An Asymmetric Regional Integration . . . . .	207
Christian GIRAULT
13.1. Introduction . . . . .	207
13.2. The region of great spaces . . . . .	207
13.2.1. A region long isolated on the world map . . . . .	208
13.2.2. A very simple political map . . . . .	209
13.3. The three partner states in North America . . . . .	209
13.3.1. The wars of the 19th century, the affirmation of modern nations and the delicate regional theme . . . . .	209
13.3.2. American hegemony over strategic control of the region . . . . .	211
13.3.3. Neighborhood, technical and diplomatic cooperation: progress throughout the 21st century . . . . .	212
13.4. What kind of integration is taking place in North America? . . . . .	213
13.4.1. The consequences of NAFTA are irreversible . . . . .	214
13.4.2. An agreement badly affected by September 11 and cartels, but eventually solid . . . . .	216
13.4.3. The renegotiation of NAFTA under Donald Trump . . . . .	216
13.4.4. The reality of population integration and ideological battles over migration . . . . .	217
13.5. Conclusion: the dilemmas of hyperpower in international competition . . . .	219
13.6. References . . . . .	220
Chapter 14. Latin American Integrations . . . . .	223
Sébastien VELUT
14.1. Introduction . . . . .	223
14.2. Naming a large region to integrate it . . . . .	224
14.3. National and regional integrations . . . . .	226
14.4. Advances and impasses of contemporary political projects . . . . .	230
14.5. True integration by the actors . . . . .	233
14.6. Conclusion: the meaning of integration . . . . .	235
14.7. References . . . . .	236

Chapter 15. The People’s Republic of China: Regional Pre-eminence as a Mirror of its Global Power. . . . . .	241
Thierry SANJUAN and Karine HENRIOT
15.1. Introduction . . . . .	241
15.2. From regional integration to the construction of its own regional mechanism. . . . .	242
15.2.1. Breaking out of isolation . . . . .	243
15.2.2. Economic integration . . . . .	244
15.2.3. Building a regional environment of your own . . . . .	244
15.3. The territories of integration in Asia . . . . .	245
15.3.1. The territories of the Chinese opening. . . . .	246
15.3.2. Border regulations. . . . .	247
15.3.3. Chinese territories of integration outside the Mainland . . . . .	247
15.3.4. Regional cooperation and security . . . . .	248
15.4. Projection in Asia and regional tensions . . . . .	248
15.4.1. International events in Asia. . . . .	249
15.4.2. “Compatriots” and the Chinese overseas . . . . .	249
15.4.3. Growing regional tensions . . . . .	250
15.4.4. The ambivalence of a differentiated discourse between Asian power and world power . . . . .	251
15.5. Conclusion: the power of proximity . . . . .	252
15.6. References . . . . .	253
Chapter 16. Southeast Asia, a Region? . . . . .	255
Nathalie FAU
16.1. Introduction . . . . .	255
16.2. Regional integration as a tool for international recognition . . . . .	256
16.2.1. From an exogenous regional name to the construction of ASEAN . . . . .	256
16.2.2. The difficult emergence of a Southeast Asian community. . . . .	257
16.2.3. The centrality of ASEAN. . . . .	258
16.3. Reconciling regional integration and integration into globalization . . . . .	259
16.3.1. An externally driven economic integration dynamic . . . . .	259
16.3.2. Re-engineering Southeast Asia by improving regional connectivity . . . . .	260
16.3.3. The privileged territories of regional integration . . . . .	262
16.4. Between risk of dilution and disintegration . . . . .	264
16.4.1. China, a factor in the disintegration of Southeast Asia? . . . . .	264
16.4.2. A proliferation of regionalization projects larger than Southeast Asia . . . . .	265
16.5. Conclusion: the power of proximity . . . . .	267
16.6. References . . . . .	268

Conclusion .....	273
Pierre BECKOUCHE and Yann RICHARD
List of Authors .....	281
Index .....	283