
Contents

Preface	vii
Introduction	ix
Chapter 1. Reputed Authors in the Field of Territorial Economics	1
1.1. The founding fathers of territorial economics	2
1.1.1. The disappearance of the concept of territory	2
1.1.2. The precursors to territorial thinking; distance and organization of economic activity.	8
1.1.3. The founders of economic analysis from the territory to growth poles	12
1.1.4. Marshall: agglomeration effects, industrial atmosphere and industrial districts, fundamental elements of an economic interpretation of the territory	13
1.1.5. Hotelling's law and straight-line competition	16
1.1.6. Perroux's growth poles	18
1.2. Contemporary theories	22
1.2.1. The Italian district	23
1.2.2. The innovative milieu of the groupe de recherche européen sur les milieux innovateurs (GREMI)	25
1.2.3. The regulatory approach	27
1.2.4. Theory of transaction costs devised by the University of California	29
1.2.5. Krugman and the New Economic Geography	31
1.2.6. Clusters and areas of expertise at the heart of global competition	33

1.2.7. The theory of spatial proximity or the actor strategy	35
1.2.8. From the territory to the city – what are the new economic challenges?	38
Chapter 2. The Key Concepts of Territorial Analysis: from the Actors to the Entrepreneurial Ecosystem	43
2.1. The actors and components within the entrepreneurial ecosystem	47
2.2. The operation of the entrepreneurial ecosystem	57
2.3. Strategies and public policies favoring entrepreneurial ecosystems	65
2.3.1. Definite risks of business creation	65
2.3.2. A wide range of state assistance	67
Chapter 3. From Implementation to Evaluations: Trajectories and Coordination	73
3.1. Territorial performance: from statistical correlations to complex causal mechanisms	75
3.1.1. Density effects of economic activities upon the performance of employment areas	76
3.1.2. Regional territorial performance: from technology grants to socio-economic links	79
3.2. The diversity of local productive ecosystems illustrated by case studies	85
3.2.1. Converting territories in the Nord-Pas-de-Calais: the case of Valenciennes	85
3.3. From policies to evaluation tools	103
3.3.1. General principles	103
3.3.2. In favor of a systems-based evaluation perspective	105
Conclusion	109
Bibliography	113
Index	123