

---

Contents

---

Introduction . . . . .	vii
Chapter 1. Dynemicin A . . . . .	1
1.1. Isolation and characterization . . . . .	1
1.2. Biosynthesis . . . . .	4
1.3. Total synthesis, analogues and biological activities . . . . .	5
1.3.1. Myers' synthesis . . . . .	5
1.3.2. Danishefsky's synthesis . . . . .	15
1.3.3. Nicolaou's approach . . . . .	29
1.3.4. Schreiber's approach . . . . .	43
1.3.5. Wender's simplified analogues . . . . .	49
1.3.6. Magnus' simplified analogues . . . . .	53
1.3.7. Unno's simplified analogues . . . . .	58
1.3.8. Maier's simplified analogues . . . . .	61
1.3.9. Riva's simplified analogues . . . . .	65
Chapter 2. Uncialamycin . . . . .	71
2.1. Isolation and characterization . . . . .	71
2.2. Biosynthesis . . . . .	74
2.3. Total synthesis and analogues . . . . .	75
2.3.1. Nicolaou's approach . . . . .	75
2.3.2. Van de Weghe's approach . . . . .	104

Conclusion . . . . .	109
Appendix . . . . .	115
Bibliography . . . . .	119
Index . . . . .	131